→ A novel strain of coronavirus known as COVID-19 that was first reported in China has since spread to other countries, including the United States, and is considered a Public Health Emergency of International Concern by the World Health Organization. The spread of COVID-19 has led to quarantine and other “social distancing” measures undertaken by government agencies, businesses, schools and other entities. While the effects of COVID-19 may be temporary, it is altering the behavior of businesses and people in a manner that may negatively affect global and local economies. In addition, stock markets in the U.S. and globally have seen significant volatility that has been attributed to coronavirus concerns. The COVID-19 outbreak is ongoing, and its dynamic nature, including uncertainties relating to the ultimate geographic spread of the virus, the severity of the disease, the duration of the outbreak, and actions that may be taken by governmental authorities to contain the outbreak or to treat its impact, are uncertain. Currently there is no vaccine for COVID-19 and the timing for the development and availability of a vaccine is unknown. The Agency can provide no assurance regarding the extent or duration of the COVID-19 outbreak, nor any adverse effects on the operations of the Authority or its impact on the Agency’s ability to pay debt service on the Bonds.
